Foreword

In a rapidly evolving educational landscape, high-quality professional learning and development are essential to ensuring continuous improvement and achieving the best possible outcomes for all children and young people.

The Department of Education's TransformED Strategy NI and the SEN Reform Agenda clearly articulate the central role of professional learning in driving educational excellence, strengthening leadership, and improving outcomes across the system. As the Education Authority, we are committed to supporting all staff to develop the knowledge, skills and confidence required to meet these ambitions.

This Professional Learning Programme reflects a whole-organisation approach, bringing together a comprehensive range of development opportunities from across the Education Authority. It is designed to support staff in all roles - those working directly in schools and educational settings.

The programme aims to build capability at every level of the system, from those at the early stages of their careers to experienced leaders, and to foster a culture of professional learning that is collaborative, responsive and focused on impact. By engaging with these opportunities, staff will strengthen their professional practice and contribute to a shared commitment to improving experiences and outcomes for children and young people.

This brochure provides a guide to the current professional learning offer and has been designed as a dynamic resource, evolving in response to emerging priorities and identified needs across the organisation.

I would like to thank all staff for their continued commitment to professional learning and for the vital role they play in supporting children, young people, schools and communities across Northern Ireland.

SEND Implementation and Development

Professional development opportunities are available to a range of teaching and non-teaching staff on the evolving legal and statutory landscape underpinning SEND provision in schools and educational settings. This enables practitioners to keep pace with changes in SEND provision and understand the day-to-day practicalities.

The current professional development offering focuses on the new SEND Framework including the Graduated Response Framework underpinned by the Special Educational Needs and Disability Act (Northern Ireland) 2016, and includes information on Personal Learning Plans, the new draft SEND Regulations and associated draft SEND Code of Practice.

Further detailed information on this new SEND Framework, including each of the three elements is available on the Department of Education website by clicking the tile below:

The main aims of training and development provided by SEND Implementation and Development are listed below;

- Share updates on changes to legislation, regulations and the draft Code of Practice and support an understanding of SEND changes under the new Framework.
- Explain the resources and materials available to support staff working with children/young people with SEN, including the Graduated Response Framework.
- Clarify the roles and responsibilities of key stakeholders within the new SEND framework, such as the school SENCo/Learning Support Coordinator, and how to plan and manage these in various school settings.
- Provide an overview of the key operational duties and the management of these in various settings, including the recording of children/young people on the school SEND and medical registers.
- Provide an understanding of the process schools should employ when assessing the needs of children/young people and providing appropriate provision, including measuring impact/outcomes.
- Provide a clear understanding of the Personal Learning Plan (PLP) and how it serves as a 'key source' document for supporting children with Special Educational Needs (SEN). This process should follow the IPAMER cycle to ensure support is effectively implemented and continually improved.

Special Educational Needs

The professionals within our SEND Teams share a clear, collective vision: to work in partnership with schools, families and the wider system to provide timely, needs led support that builds capacity and strengthens inclusive practice. Through a collaborative, multi-specialist approach, Local Impact Team (LITs) aim to ensure the right support is in place at the right time, empowering those around the child or young person and enabling them to participate, progress and achieve their full potential.

The EA's Graduated Response Framework underpins this approach, setting out a continuum of support and identifying evidence informed interventions aligned to differing levels of need. Central to the LIT model is a focus on early intervention, prevention and capacity building, supporting school staff through targeted, evidence based guidance and professional learning to improve outcomes for children and young people with special educational needs.

In addition, The EA's Education Psychology Service (EPS) offers a targeted programme of professional learning designed to support school staff in responding to key challenges affecting pupils' learning, wellbeing and engagement.

Five overarching SEND categories are used to help identify the support a child/young person may need:

- 1. Cognition and Learning
- 2. Social, Behavioural, Emotional and Wellbeing
- 3. Speech, Language and Communication
- 4. Sensory (Deaf/Hard of Hearing and Vision Impairment)
- 5. Physical Needs.

Nurturing Approaches

The development and implementation of universal early intervention and preventative school-based supports and training is facilitated by the Nurture Advisory & Support Service (NASS) through the delivery of the Nurture in Education Programme (NEP).

The NEP is a progressive, trauma informed, strengths-based model of school capacity building that focuses on developing an awareness of nurturing approaches and Trauma Informed Practice (TIP). The NEP enables schools to establish a culture and ethos of wellbeing for all, whilst implementing more targeted interventions for pupils experiencing a range of social, behaviour, emotional and wellbeing (SBEW) needs.

The programme promotes the key principles of attachment, consistency, resilience and trauma informed practice at a whole school level by utilising the six principles of nurture to enable children who attend school, in challenging circumstances, to begin to have more consistency and stability in their lives.

Whole school and bespoke professional development opportunities are available in areas such as early intervention and preventative practice.

Education Welfare Service – Leading the Introduction of Restorative Practices in Education

The Education Welfare Service is committed to leading the development and implementation of Restorative Practices across all educational provisions. This approach promotes a consistent, relationship-focused ethos that supports emotional wellbeing, strengthens engagement, and fosters a strong sense of belonging for both pupils and staff. Recognising that positive relationships are at the heart of a successful and inclusive school environment, the Restorative Practices team will work collaboratively with schools and educational settings to embed approaches that align with existing pastoral care systems and behaviour frameworks.

Restorative practices are proven to be effective in both preventing and resolving conflict, while also helping to build and sustain respectful, trusting relationships throughout the entire school community. By prioritising connection, understanding, and accountability, schools can create safer, more supportive environments where all individuals feel valued and heard. To support this work, a comprehensive programme of professional learning has been developed, ensuring that all staff, teaching and non-teaching, have the confidence, skills, and knowledge to contribute to a restorative culture.

The learning offer includes:

- Step 1 – A Peek at Restorative Practice for Whole-School Staff
An introductory session for all staff, providing an overview of restorative practice and its role in fostering a positive, respectful school culture.

Specialist training is also available for staff in key roles to support deeper implementation:

- Step 2 – Building Foundations: An Introduction to Restorative Practice in Education
This session builds on initial learning by developing a deeper understanding of restorative principles and their practical application. Staff will explore strategies to embed restorative approaches into daily interactions, promoting connection, accountability, and inclusion.
- Step 3 – Connecting through Circles
Developing skills in using circles to strengthen relationships, encourage pupil voice, and support inclusive dialogue.
- Step 4 – Facilitating Restorative Conversations in Education
A practical, skills-based workshop focused on developing confidence in leading restorative conversations. Participants will learn techniques to guide dialogue, manage conflict constructively, and support positive, empathetic outcomes.

Additional Bolt-On Workshop (available following Step 1):

- Restorative Language – Exploring how language shapes relationships and promotes respect and understanding.

This flexible, staged approach ensures schools can embed restorative practices in a sustainable and meaningful way, tailored to their specific needs.
